IRON FURNACE MAY START UP HERE IN NEXT FEW MONTHS

Main Office Writes to Ask What Repairs Needed—Pulaski Plant Blown In Three Months Ago

FURNACE IN FULL BLAST EMPLOYS NEAR 300 MEN

By F. S. LEE, Engineer

A letter was received here this week by the custodian of the local blast furnace plant of the Virginia Coal and Coke Co., from its main office at Roanoke, Virginia, inquiring as to what repairs were needed and how much it would cost to clean out stack No. 1 of the local plant. This is the stack that was blown out in January 1921, and is partly filled with ashes and other refuse. Stack No. 2 requires relining with fire brick and other repairs before it could be blown in.

The iron and steel business is booming again, the demand is increasing and prices are advancing. The pig iron market has lagged somewhat behind the finished iron and steel market, but is now beginning to feel the improvement.

The Middlesboro blast furnace plant is one of six such plants of the V. I C. C. Co., a fifteen million dollar corporation, and all six plants have been cut of blast since early in 1921. The Pulaski, Virginia, furnace was blown in about three months ago, and from the present outlook the Middlesboro plant will be the next one to start.

The Middlesboro furnace was one of the last of the V. I. C. furnaces to close down, little more than two years ago. For three months after this the iron ore, bought in Michigan and Virginia for this and the other furnaces, kept piling in here until there was stored here about half a million dollars worth of iron ore, or enough to run the furnace six months without further restocking. Because of the decrease in iron price the stock of ore is, of course worth less now.

When the iron furnace is running full force, as it was between the years 1913 and 1921, it employs from two hundred to three hundred men. If the furnace were to be blown in now it could be running in good shape in five weeks. The value of this industrially, to Middlesboro at this time can scarcely be estimated.

WOULD FORM NEW ROAD ASSOCIATION

To Organize Central, Eastern And Southeastern Kentucky Highway Interests

By Associated Press.

LEXINGTON, March 15—A movement has been started by the officers and members of the road organizations of Central and Eastern Kentucky for the formation of a Central and Eastern eKntucky Good Roads Association, according to an announcement made today by Col. Jim Maret, the Kyva Scout.

The first meeting will probably be held in Lexington sometime in May. Headquarters of the organization will be at Lexington.

All Central, Eeastern, and South-Eastern Kentucky road organizations are expected to become members of the new association, though retaining their present formation. It is expected that all the organizations will work in unison for the advancement of the cause of good roads, according to Col. Maret.

In addition to encouraging the improvement of the roads in the Blue Grass and the early constructive of the mountain highways the new organization will take active steps in pushing the proposition of a state bond issue for roads.

SALVATION ARMY HEAD SAYS FEW DRUG ADDICTS HERE

Drug addicts are comparatively rare in Middlesboro according to C. Cuthbert who is gathering statistics on the subject for the headquarters of the Salvation Army. There are perhaps not more than a dozen habitual users of "dope" in the entire city he says.

The Salvation Army is trying to find out whether or not the number of drug users has increased since national phohibition became effective Commander Cuthbert is of the opinion that the drug habit has not become more prevalent on account of the Volstead Act that the habit of drinking and that of using drugs are entirely separate and distinct.

Middlesboro seems to have a very small percentage for a town of its size. The commodant says that one of the local druggists sell drugs and opiates to addicts, that their supply is obtained from other sources. This, he said, is at least partly responsible for the present excellent conditions.

INTEREST IN GOLF INCREASING NOW

Warm Weather Brings Out Golfers As Well As Spring Flowers

Interest in golf is increasing with the coming of warm weather, according to F. P. Scales, and many men are beginning to appear on the course. Tournaments, which will be of weekly occurrence hereafter, started last Saturday. All members who wish may joinin this tournament, there being no limit to the number allowed.

Mr. Qualkenbush, expert golfer and manager of the course, is there at all times to teach the fine points of the game to those needing the instruction. He is giving universal satisfaction and members say it was a stroke of good management when he was engaged for the work.

The membership to the country club is practically filled up now, according to Mr. Scales. Not only men of Middlesboro and Pineville belong, but also a number from other cities of this and other states.

JURORS IN BURTON JONES TRIAL TODAY VISIT MURDER SCENE

Arguments In Case Expected to Begin This Afternoon—Defendant Charged Killing Jess Bull December 12

RELATIVES TAKE STAND IN BEHALF OF ACCUSED

Testimony in the trial of Burton Jones having all been heard, the jury, accompanied by officers and the prosecuting attorney, visited the scene where Jess Bull was murdered on the afternoon of December 12. Arguments in the case are expected to begin late this afternoon. Defendant was in the witness chair for some time today and testified as to his actions on the day of the murder, saying that he was at home when the crime was committed.

The rifle owned by Burton Jones and the two empty shells which were found near the slain man are exhibits forming the greater part of the evidence of the commonwealth. George Van Beber, chief deputy sheriff, who found the rifle at the home of the defendant, testified that the empty shells were fired by his rifle, that the indentation made by the plunger on the caps were identical with those made o a shell which he fired in the rifle. He said he had had wide experience in the handling of firearms and no two could make similar indentations.

Allen Guinn, a gunsmith with thirty-five years experience, testified that it was impossible to know in every case what particular firearm had fired certain shells, that all plungers were, in general, the same. Henry Jones, the brother of the defendant, produced two empty shells, one of which had been fired by the defendant's rifle. These, he stated, had similar impressions and apparently had been fired by the same rifle.

The commonwealth introduced testimony to prove that defendant was seen near the scene a few hourse before the crime was committed. Defendant's mother and sister testified that he had been at home at the time Jess Bull was killed.

The case has been one of the most closely contested of any crimnal trial here for some time. Every inch of the way has been a fight for the opposing sides. It has aroused such general interest that the court room is packed at all times. Through it all, the defendant and his relatives have been patient and unemotional listeners.

J. WILL TAYLOR ENDORSES PARK

Tennessee Congressman Here Today Interested in Promoting This Proposition

"The National Park proposition of Middlesboro and Cumberland Gap has my heartiest endorsement and I will do all I can in Washington to help out in the matter," declared Hon. J. Will Taylor, congressman from the Second Tennessee District, who was in Middlesboro today. He said that he was interested in the proposition because it will be such a great aid to the development of this section of the country, including East Tennessee.

"There are no new developments in the proposition in Washington so far as I know," the congressman said, "the two sides are of course fighting hard for favor."

Congressman Taylor was in town on legal business and was the guest of his sister, Mrs. Dan Robinson. He left for Knoxville at 3 o'clock where he now maintains an office.

IRISH FREE STATE HAS MANY GREAT PROBLEMS AHEAD

Government Does Good Job Of Financing Expenses In Face Of Strife—Gives Doles To Jobless

FACE CLAIMS OF $200,000,000 FOR PROPERTY DESTRUCTION

How will St. Patrick's Day, 1923, find Ireland? To answer this question Milton Bronner was sent there.. Here is his third dispatch.

By Milton Bronner

DUBLIN, March 15.—The young Irish Free State, once it has put down rebellion will have enough other serious problems on its hands. In the main they are the same problems that all Europe is facing.

FINANCES: Many reading about fighting doubtlessly think the government has a hard time getting money. As a matter of fact, it has done splendidly.

Between April 1 of last year and the 1th of February this year—date of the last report issued—the government collected nearly $110,000,000. Of this, more than $15,000,000 was from income taxes, $70,000 from tobacco, liquor and similiar taxes. On February 10 there was a balance of $3,400,000 in the treasury.

However, the government is facing a deficit for the reason that it ismaintaining an army of 30,000 men. Just as soon as peace is secured, this army will be greatly reduced. Meanwhile money needed to overcome this deficit will in all probably be raised by an internal loan.

UNEMPLOYMENT: The last report on unemployment in the Free State showed 38.007 out of work, as compared with 51,976 in the same period last year. Of these 30,406 were men and 7601 were women.

Dublin, the metropolis. has the largest number, 11,185; Cork has 6510 Limerick 1598; Waterford 1577 and Wexford 1171.

Many of those drawing unemployment doles from the government similar to the practice of England.

STRIKES: Recently more than 35 flour mills were closed by the strike of 1600 employes who refused to accept big cuts in wages. The dockers in Cork just recently came off a strike. Trouble is looming again in the railway world because some of the roads are unwilling at present to agree to wage adjustment boards.

In many isolated country districts when their wage and hour demands are not conceded, farm laborers have adopted the policy of burning corn and hay ricks.

PROPERTY DESTRUCTION: It is estimated that upward of $200,000,000 worth of property has been destroyed and the losers will look to the state to reimburse them The state in turn will have to look to the taxpayers to raise the money. Therefore, Dail Eireann at present is considering a bill to limit the responsibility of the state.

The burnings have been a fertile source of fraud.

As one cabinet minister humorously said to me, every time a newspaper clipping pinned to a wall is burned the state is pounced on with a claim for the destruction of an "old master."

The Irregulars at first confined themselves to blowing up bridges and destroying turnpikes Next they attacked railway property. Latterly they have burned down property belonging to Free State officers, members of the Dail, prominent government supporters or their near relatives.

As a result all Ireland is studded with wreckage.

LAME NEGRO IN ROLE OF TAILOR APPARENTLY INSANE

With a sample tailoring book and a pair of brand new crutches a negro, apparently insane, was apprehended at Mingo Tuesday by Tennessee officers and brought to the Middlesboro jail for safe keeping. He will be transfered to Claiborne county authorities as soon as the latter come for him.

The sample book which he carried and which is now at the jail is a weighty volume, containing samples of the latest spring patterns of goods The negro is said to be slightly lame but has no need for two crutches. He is one of the most eccentric characters that has been in jail for some time. He does not admit being insane, but said he was "tired and sleepy."

INFANTS ONLY FEW DAYS OLD MAY NOW BE INSURED

Infants only a few days old may now be insured, according to J. R. Estep, manager of the Metropolitan office here. Recent legislation in the state of New York makes legal this radical changes from rules followed by insurance companies heretofore.

A larger percentage of children die under one year than at any other period and it is difficult to figure a risk of this kind, the company is taking a long chance in thus lowering its age standard and the unusual step taken by the company has created a small sensation in the insurance field. Heretofore, the minimun insurance age has been one year.

BUILDING LOSS IS ESTIMATED AT $100,000

By Associated Press

ANGELICA, Mar. 15.—Seven women and two men perished when the Allegheny county alms house burned here early today. The fire was due to a gas explosion in the basement. Charles Sandern, head stable man of the institution, lost his life in an effort to rescue women inmates. He carried three bed-ridden women to safety and on the fourth trip the floor caved in and he burned to death. A night fireman was also killed in the explosion. Six women were cremated in their beds and another was killed in a leap from the upper window. The loss was $100,000. The structure is a two story wooden building erected forty-five years ago.

Several Swift Runners Meet Fleet Beyond Three-Mile Limit Off Jersey Shore

HIGHLANDS, N. J. Mar. 15.—There is great activity today in the floating rum market off the Jersey three-mile limit. Several swift runners put out from here for the liquor laden fleet which increased to fifteen vessels. Two tugs from New York were sighted today visiting the fleet. Notable among the new arrivals in the rum fleet was the former New York yacht which left the fleet last week and apparently returned from the Bahamas with a new cargo.

TOURISTS TAKE SERIOUSLY "DETOUR KENTUCKY" REPORT

Tourists have taken seriously the warning issued in many nationally prominent newspapers to "detour Kentucky," according to local garage managers and others who have noticed that no tourists returning from Florida have been passing through Middlesboro.

Working for the best interests of their brother motorists, the infamous slogan was started and has been kept alive by automobile clubs over the state. A Middlesboro automobile firm received a request recently from the Knoxville Automobile club asking for authentic data concerning the condition of the road between Pineville and Corbin. The reply to the query was that a motorist could possibly go over the road by taking a team of horses along for use at the various mudholes.

While it is said that the publicity concerning the condition of our thoroughfares may hurt the state temporarily, it will no doubt be an incentive to spur authorities and citizens into action that we might soon be able to give out a different story to the country.

A THOUGHT

The thing that hath been, it is that which shall be; and that which is done is that which shall be done; and there is no new thing under the sun. —Eccle. 1:9.

The vanity of human life is like a river, constantly passing away, and yet constantly coming on.—Pope.

REVIVING LOCAL IRON INDUSTRY

News that work at the V. I. C. furnace here is likely to be resumed will be welcomed by all who are interested in the growth of the city. Employing two hundred or more men, it is perhaps the greatest single industry that has ever operated within the city.

There seems to be no outstanding reasons why Middlesboro should not eventually become an iron smelting and maufacturing city. It is near enough to iron ore and certainly has plenty of coal. With the proper nourishment the industry could change the town into a miniature Pittsburgh or Birmingham within a short time.

The iron industry, the strongest of any business in the entire country and a veritable barometer for other lines of business, is now booming again Middlesboro, with its iron foundry and its nearness to fuel and ore, should get its share of the prosperity. Perhaps if work is resumed here again the owners of the foundry will not deem it advisable to close down again.

And there is little reason to doubt that work will again start at the furnace. The V. I. C. has been paying taxes on the property and keeping it in a condition so that it could be used at any time and it is but reasonable to suppose that they will again open it.

NAPOLEON'S END

New revelations about the last days of Napoleon are published in a book written by his second valet, Louis Etienne St. Denis.

Historians have been peretuating the old story that Nap's last words were: "France....army——head of the army ....Josephine."

That sounds a little too theatricial to be true, more like what would be said by a stage Napoleon than the real Napoleon.

St. Denis, in his personal recollections, wrote nothing about these alleged last words. According to his story, Napoleon in his last moments was chiefly concerned with getting wine.

The valet recorded it this way: "He would ask for a little wine from time to time, which they hastened to give him. He said after drinking a few drops, 'Ah, how good wine is! How good wine is!' "

That sounds more human. And Napoleon was childishly human.

As death drew near, while rats scurried to and fro in the rambling corridors: "He would cough so loud that he could be heard all over the house. The emperor died without the slightest perceptible convulsion and without the least stiffening. He went out as the light of a lamp goes out."

Is that light now burning elsewhere? Napoleon was vain to the point of egomania, was constantly on the watch for anything that he could interpret as a slight, St. Denis wrote.

He knew that he caught cold easily, yet he never hurried to shelter when caught in the rain while out walking. In reading, if he liked a book he replaced it carefully on the library shelves. If the book bored him, he showed lively displeasure, often throwing the volume in the fire.

In his last days he wore his clothes until they were shabby, then he had his tailor "turn" them.

He never used gloves, except occasionally on horseback.

"The emperor never wore any jewelry except a watch," runs the valet's record. Probably this was due to the fear that jewelry might detract from attention that he wanted exclusively for his person.

Napoleon was an abnormal creature. His career reflected the rise and fall of his diseased pituitary gland.

He was a genius at leadership and organization But personally he was a type that few of us would invite to call again, judging from his valet's book. So much for one of the 25 most powerful personalities that ever lived.

We wonder if H. E. Denger's first name is "Hum."

Recent development on Nineteenth street shows the versatility of business men of the section.

The man who recently bought a tent for a dwelling probably knows that in the summer heat is less in tents.

Though the Ides of March was fatal to Caesar the Merchants Association seems to favor it for their meeting.

While so many civic improvements are being made why not pass an ordinance against spring poets.

The Baptist Sunday school men's class has a larger membership than the M. E. South but it doesn't have the police department.

Middlesboro may not be represented in the national "Who's Who" but it can't be said that we are lacking for Judges, Majors and Colonels.

THE OPEN FORUM

Base Ball

Editor Daily News:

The writer noticed in a recent issue of the Plain American of Harlan, Kentucky, an article relative to our national pastime, Baseball.

There is no reason why the people of this part of Kentucky and Virginia should not enjoy baseball this season. They want it that is well proven by the number who attended the games of the Harlan County League of Kentucky last year.

It is understood that Lynch and Banner Fork have decided to have teams and are willing to join a league such as we had last season, and that Norton and Dorchester, Virginia, and Middlesboro, Harlan, Pineville and Corbin, Kentucky are seriously considering organizing teams.

The trouble seems to be that the leaders lose their enthusiasm every time the mercury drops in the thermometer. But rest assured the warm weather will soon be here in all its glory and that it will be a pleasant sound to hear your favorite swat the old apple on the nose.

It will be to the benefit of all cities mentioned, and to their industries to have a good class of baseball. And the best way is to have a league. This not only helps out financially by reducing the expenses but helps to create a friendly rivalry which makes the game more interesting.

Now the way to bring this about is by some man or group of men or some civic organization or group of organizations in each city, to take the initiative and form a club to support baseball—and talk over the matter from everyangle, get the business houses interested and send a representative to a meeting which will soon be called at some central point, presumably Pineville of Middlesboro. Prepare now and have your city represented at the meeting.

Kiwanis Clubs—you build—Suppose you hammer this matter into shape. Remember that all work and no play makes Johnny a dull boy. In the springtime young men's fancies fondly turn to thoughts of BASE BALL Come on, open up your hearts and pocket books and lets give our youth and working people some good clean sport.

Fellowship of Prayer

THURSDAY

The Challenge of the City

"And he entered into Jerusalem." Mark 11:11.

Read Mark 11:1-11.

"Thousands of men and women in all the world's cities have lost their grip upon the high things of life because no one but God sees them."

MEDITATION: The supreme challenge to Christian brotherhood is the crowded city with its teeming thousands drifting hither and yon. Jesus offered his best to his city. Am I a true Christian citizen?

HYMN:

O Master from the mountain side,
Make haste to heal these hearts of pain;
Among these restless throngs abide,
O tread the city's streets again;
Till sons of men shall learn thy love,
And follow where thy feet have trod;
Till glorious from thy heaven above,
Shall come the City of our God.

PRAYER: O God of Patience and Consolation, give us such good will, we beseech thee, that with free hearts we may love and serve thee and our brethren; and having thus the mind of Christ, may begin heaven on earth, and exercise ourselves therein till that day when heaven, where love abideth, shall seem no strange habitation to us; for Jesus Christ's sake. Amen.

LETTER FROM JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT TO JOSEPH GRAVES HAMILTON

JOSEPH GRAVES HAMILTON,
SHARON, PA.
MY DEAR MR. HAMILTON:

By the time you receive this letter Leslie will have probably have told you that I have asked her to be my wife. As you know nothing of me, however, I thought it would be nothing less than honorable to tell you a little about the man to whom you are being asked to give your daughter.

As you probably have guessed from my name, John Alden Prescott, my forebears were of Puritan stock. My father is dead and my mother has enough to keep her comfortably without any help from me.

My mother is especially proud of being a direct descendant of John Alden, but that of course means nothing to me; in fact I have felt that in all my life I have been somewhat circumscribed and confined because my mother expected me to live up to the more or less narrow precept of my ancestors.

I haven't done it. I am just a modern young man who has gone through college with more or less escapades and honors— perapa more escapades and less honors. However, I have not done anything that I am sure even you would consider unpardonable.

Of course, I cannot expect to keep Leslie in the way in which she now lives, but I am getting $4000 a year with the Acme Advertising Company, And I have prospects of being raised another thousand shortly, and a good chance of becoming a member of the firm some day.

Leslie tells me she is sure we can live on a comparatively small salary and I think perhaps she would be willing to make some sacrifices for me; and I know anything that I shall give up will mean nothing to me beside the fact that I shall be privileged to call the sweetest woman in the world my wife.

If you think me not wholly unworthy it will give me the greatest joy; but I must tell you that with or without your consent. I shall make Leslie Hamilton my wife, because I love her with all my heart and she has told me that she loves me.

Respectfully yours.
JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT.

LETTER FROM JOSEPH GRAVES HAMITON TO JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT

MR. JOHN ALDEN PRESCOTT,
ALBANY, N. Y.
MY DEAR SIR:

So you want to marry my girl, do you?

Well, I've been expecting this for a long while. I knew some man would have the good taste to pick her out from among the crowd.

I was very glad to get your letter, my boy, because Leslie had been singing your praises from the moment I met her at the train, and yet I found she really knew nothing about you. I asked her what you were going to live on, and she did not know; in fact, with the exception of knowing the name of your advertising company, she knew nothing about your present earning capacity or your future prospects.

I think she did tell me that you sent her violets or orchids every day and that you drove a smashing red roadster, and that you didn't object to a girl using a lip-stick in public or smoking an occasional cigaret. I told her, if that were so you were either more lenient or more of a fool than her own father. I have objected to it strenuously.

I'm afraid you two young people will run against some snags because from what Leslie has told me about you, and from what I know about her, you are both extravagant young persons. You both have had money enough to gratify most of your wishes; you neither have had any great responsibilities.

I was never the kind of man, however, that wanted to pick out my daughter's husbands. I ran away with Leslie's mother because the old man thought I was not good—enough for her. I lived to see the day he came to me to borrow money. I may as well tell you that I never expect to have to ask the husband of either of my daughters for a similiar favor.

You two young people will have to live your own lives. You will have to support Leslie and she will have to learn to live on your salary.

I like your frankness and your modesty. If Leslie is satisfied with you, it is not for me to cavil. Let us see you soon, my dear John.

Most cordially yours,
JOSEPH GRAVES HAMILTON.

TEXARKANA

By Berton Braley

Texarkana, Tex.-Ark.
The highways stretch across the land
From there to here from here to there;
But right and left on either hand
Are crossways leading everywhere,
That make you sort of want to know
Where do the little cross-roads go?

The highways show upon the maps,
They pass through cities and through states,
The little roads—they may perhaps
Lead to a mansion's splendid gates,
Or to a cottage snug and low,
Where do the little cross-roads go?

The stream of traffic passes by,
Few are the cars that ever turn,
To follow where the byways lie
Yet had I time I'd like to learn
Whither they wander, to and fro,
Where do the little cross-roads go?

To camps in forest places wild,
To tiny hamlet 'mid the trees,
To spots where fortune never smiled,
To myriads of goals like these;
There roads may turn, and twist—heigho!
Where do the little cross-roads go?

Martin-Templin Wedding Today

The most brilliant wedding here in several seasons occurred at one o'clock this afternoon when Miss Carrie Lee Templin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Templin, became the bride of Horace C. Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Martin of Boston, Mass. About five hundred guests, friends and relatives of the bride and bridegroom, witnessed the marriage.

The church was decorated in green and white. A white lattice, laced with green smilax, hid the choir loft, while a row of white candles burned just below. The pulpit was banked with ferns, white lilies and carnations, with a tall white candelabra, bearing seven lighted candles, on each side. The aisles and front of the church floor were carpeted in white. White staffs, to which white lilies were tied with tulle, marked off the seats reserved for the family and intimate friends of the bridal pair.

At exactly one o'clock the musicians, Mrs. T. R. Hill, organist and Prof. J F. Surmann, violinist, began Lohengrin's Wedding March to which the wedding party entered. First came the ushers, George Callison, Frank Frazer, Warren Rash, Ed Yeager, Joe Sweeney and John McKinnion, down the aisles, while the pastor, the Rev. Sam P. Martin entered from a side door. The ushers took their places at his right. Next came the bridesmaids, Miss Mary Yeager, Miss Mary Heath, Miss Myra Johnson and Miss Virginia Barry. Their dresses were of white net over white satin, made with hoop skirts, and trimmed in orchid and pink ribbons. Two of the bridesmaids carried pink feather fans and two, orchid feather fans. Next came Mrs. H. D. Whitcomb, a matron of honor, dressed in pink georgette and carrying a huge bouquet of pink sweet peas. Following her was Miss Carrie Williams maid of honor, dressed in a beautiful orchid lace dress and carrying a large bouquet of sweet peas. Then came the bride's sister, Mrs. S. M. Reams, the other matron of honor, dressed in pink georgette and also carrying sweet peas.

The bridegroom Horace C. Martin, then entered from the side, accompanied by his brother, Thomas Martin, best man. Preceding the bride down the aisle were little Robert and Mary Baker, dressed in white and carrying flowers. Miss Templin entered on the arm of her brother-in-law, S. M. Reams She was very beautiful in a dress of white satin and lace. Her long lace veil was attached to a pearl studded coronet worn close over her head. She carried a bouquet of white bride's roses.

Following the marriage ceremony the wedding party went to the bride's home where the wedding luncheon was served. The newly married couple left on the afternoon train for their honeymoon. They will be gone about a month, in Tampa, Palm Beach and in Cuba and other southern points The bride's gifts to her attendants were feather fan's and the bridegroom's gifts to the ushers were engraved, white gold pocket knives.

Dinner Last Night For Bridal Party

The bridal party of the Martin-Templin wedding were entertained with an elaborate dinner at the Hotel Cumberland last night before going to the church for wedding rehersal. The table was decorated in pink and orchid sweet peas, and a silver basket of sweet peas formed the centerpiece. Guests were in evening dress and Miss Templin was particularly beautiful in a dress of burgundy colored georgette embroidere in silver. She carried a large orchid feather fan. Guests were: Miss Carrie Lee Templin, Miss Carrie Williams of Will's Point, Texas, Miss Myra Johnson and Miss Mary Heath of Pineville, Miss Virginia Barry, Mrs H. D Whitcomb of Boston, Mass., Horace C. Martin, George Callison, Warren Rash, Joe Sweeney, Frank Frazer, John McKinnion, Hobart Reams, Ed Yeager. Thomas Martin, Mr. and Mrs B. T. Add one-fourth cup of salad oil, a tablespoon of salt, a teaspoon of paprika and a little black pepper. Mix throughly and add a tablespoon of lemon juice or vinegar. If too acid, add also a teaspoon of sugar.

Mix a tablespoon each of mustard, salt and flour and three tablespoons of suar in the dish in which the dressing is to be cooked; add two unbeaten egg yolks stir until a smooth paste is formed; add a cup and a half of milk and half a cup of vinegar; cook over water until the mixture thickens and coats a spoon turn on the stiffly-beaten whites of two eggs; beat throughly and chill.

TO BRING GRAND OPERA TO NEW LOUISVILLE TEMPLE

Grand opera will be brought to Louisville when the new million dollar Kosair Temple is built, according to Frank G. Dre wery, director-general of the enterprise, who is in Middlesboro. The Ancient Arabic Order of the Mystic Shrine has 5,000 members, more than 3,000 of whom are non-residents of Louisville and 100 of whom live in Middlesboro. All these are stockholders in the new building enterprise.

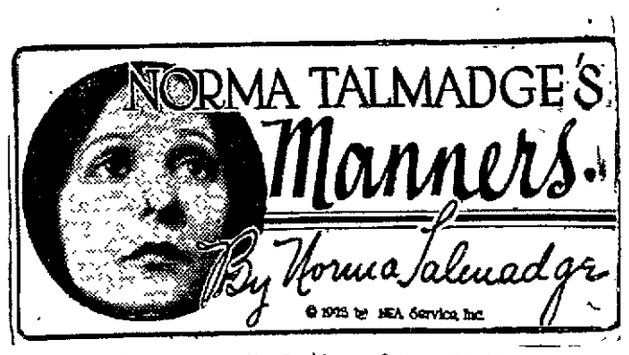
The Kosair mosque will have a seating capacity of 5,000 persons, and the size of it alone will insure the bringing of the opera to Louisville. It is estimated that the opera will bring a number of people from this section each year and also from St. Louis, Nashville, Evansville and all intervening points.

Mr. Drewery, who is on the staff of the Louisville Post, has been oen of the leading men of thestate in promoting the better quality of music, dramatics and other fine arts.

Lace Or Malines

Black lace or black malines is used to soften the rather hard line about the smart black turbans for spring.

Half of the man who can whistle a tun learned to do it on payday.



Letters afford an opportunity for evidencing culture and charm that never should be neglected. The written word never should be careless, for it usually is accepted literally and it may endure for ages. There is no gesture, no inflection, no smile to help interpret the line one pens. If a letter be anything but good-tempered, it had better never be written.

Letters

Invitations, acceptances regrets and other social notes should be penned, never typewritten.

Written words are a poor medium for the expression of emotions, whether they be anger, love or what not.

No woman should ever write to any man a letter that can be construed as foolishly sentimental or that implies intimacy.

No man ever should write any letter in which there could be the slightest intimation that he has received special favors from a woman.

Everyone should keep in mind that any letter he writes may fall in the hands of someone other than the one for whom it is intended.

IT'S BAD MANNERS to begin any letter with "I."

When Your Neighbor's House Burns—

When fire springs up in a neighboring building—is your home safe? Will flying sparks and brands drop on your roof and die out harmlessly—or will they kindle your roof to flames and contribute your home to another dreaded community conflagration?

If there are buildings anywhere near you, and if your home is covered with inflammable roofing, you are not safe from the menace of roof-communicated fire. Your home is recognized by town, city, state and insurance authorities as a fire risk—a danger to you and your family.

But through Asbestos, Johns-Manville offers you safety—a shingle roof which cannot burn—a positive barrier to roof-communicated fire. This shingle roof not only takes a base rate of insurance but should last as long as the building it covers. It enhances the architectural appearance of your home and gives you the cheapest per year service of any roofing obtainable.

An investment in Johns-Manville Asbestos Shingles for your home is both a contribution to civic safety and to individual economy. Your money is returned to you many times over in safety, appearance, long life and remarkably low upkeep.

Let us show you samples and give you estimate.

PINEVILLE, Mar. 15.—Dr. E. E. Violette, evangelist, will begin a series of meetings at the First Christian church Sunday morning, which will continue until April 1. Dr. Violette comes to Pineville from Florida where he has just held two most successful meetings.

Dr. Violette will take as his subject Sunday morning, "The Call of the World;" and Sunday evening, "The Abiding Word of God."

The Rev. Howard J. Brazelton, pastor of the church, gives as the purpose of the meetings to emphasize the great fundamentals of Christianity, to exalt Christ, to make the Christian life more attractive than sin, to strengthen the faith of believers, to awaken a deeper consciousness of the Christian's privilege and responsibility and to emphasize the place of the church in the community.

With the exception of the Baptist church, whose revival services are being conducted by Dr. George R. Stair of Boston, the other churches of Pineville will dismiss their Sunday evening services to join with the Christian church in union service, during the meeting.

PINEVILLE COUNCIL NAMES BOARD OF SUPERVISORS

PINEVILLE, Mar. 15.—The Board of Supervisors for 1923 was elected at the city council meeting held Monday night, and is made up of Rice Johnson, George Marting and Ray Moss. This is the board which equalizes the city taxes and plays an important role in the city make-up. The fact that three of the best business men in town has been named is another symbol of the progressive spirit of Pineville.

The only other business taken up was the passing of ordinances providing side walks for various sections of town.

He appealed for worthy, compelling ideals in business, politics, social life and the education in our schools as well as in the religious life. Instead of the jazz found in every phase of present day existence he urged the necessity of seriousness in dealing with all problems, completing his address with a pleas for the exalted ideal of truth—the truth free of men's opinions but as taught in the Bible by Jesus.

There will be no track team at Pineville High this year.

PINEVILLE, Mar. 15.—The Kentucky Colonel, the K. The officers of the Bell County organization are: P. T. Atkins, of Pineville, president; Dr. L. L. Robertson, Middlesboro, vice-president; Miss Fannie Leman, Pineville, secretary; and R. L. Maddox, Middlesboro, treasurer.

Who Said West Wasn't Wild? Real Cattle-Rustling Yarn

SAINAS, Calif., March 14—Well, pard, the old wild west ain't gone yet!

They can give 'em airplanes and movies and radio, but that don't mean the boys has forgot how to rustl' a little cattle now and then.

Maybe they ain't quite as slick as they useta be. They's a little outa practice. If they warn't the Radcliffe boys and Al Stone wouldn't of got corralled like they did.

You've heard about it, ain't you?

Well, the Radcliff boys and Al Stone is the toughest ridin' hardest ridin' buckaroos on any man's range.

Wasn't it Al Stone stuck on that wild cayuse, Frying Pan, when everyone else was takin' dust?

And haven't these her buckaroos taken half the rodeo medals in the west? I'm telling you!

And then they ups and arrests them for a quiet little cattle rustlin'!

Alkali Ike's Fault

An' all because of that loud-mouthed Alkali Ike, a ornery "chuck-line rider." Maybe you don't savvy "chuck-line rider." Wal a chuck-liner has the same social standin' as a sheep-herder. He rides from ranch to ranch feedin' on the bounty of the natives.

Wal, Alkali Ike gets a-hold of some bootleg. An' he goes round blabbing' how he was invited in on a little brandin' party over to Stone's ranch.

The sheriff gets hold of Ike and Ike spills the beans. He says the boys got some cattle from the Miller and Lux ranch and got a little careless with the brandin' irons.

Ike said they doctored up the "double box" brand and turned it into a double box arrow.

Wal, the sheriff grabbed the Radcliffe boys, Nick and Bill.

Nick had sat in a little poker session when the aces was runnin' against him and got hard up.

Anyhow the Radcliffe boys coughed up and they say, mixed Al in it. The sheriff said the boys spilled everything —even that they done it on Al Stone's ranch.

Let Al Go

So the first jury let Al go, even with Ike's story and the Radcliffe boys.

THE HARD RIDIN' RADCLIFFE BOYS THAT ARE MIXED IN CTTLE RUSTLIN' DEAL—BILL (ABOVE) AND NICK (BELOW)

They almost gave him a medal too. They've all seen him ride and I feel sorry for the poor district attorney what's got to do his duty and prosecute.

They got some more charges again' him and the Radcliffe boys still have gotta go through with it. They've come clean and probably'll get off easy.

The bird I feels sorry for most is Alkali Ike. They had to put him in jail to keep him sober nuf to go on the stand. But wait 'til that ornery chuck-liner goes out again to get handouts. Say, he'll be livin' on lizards' wings and angleworms the rest o' his life.

That's all they's to the story, pard, but don't let 'em tell you the west is gone.

WASHINGTON, March 14—Two "sore" United States ex-senators are en route to Santiago, Chile, as mem-

They are Atlee Pomerene of Ohio, Frank B. Kelly of Minnesota.

When we say "sore" we do not mean mentally tender and touchy over their recent defeat for re-election. We mean actually and physically sore.

With the exception of the Baptist church, whose revival services are being conducted by Dr. George R. Stair of Boston, the other churches of Pineville will dismiss their Sunday evening services to join with the Christian church in union service, during the meeting.

PINEVILLE COUNCIL NAMES BOARD OF SUPERVISORS

PINEVILLE, Mar. 15.—The Board of Supervisors for 1923 was elected at the city council meeting held Monday night, and is made up of Rice Johnson, George Marting and Ray Moss. This is the board which equalizes the city taxes and plays an important role in the city make up. The fact that three of the best business men in town has been named is another symbol of the progressive spirit of Pineville.

The only other business taken up was the passing of ordinances providing side walks for various sections of town.

Who Said West Wasn't Wild? Real Cattle-Rustling Yarn

SAINAS, Calif., March 14—Well, pard, the old wild west ain't gone yet!

They can give 'em airplanes and movies and radio, but that don't mean the boys has forgot how to rustl' a little cattle now and then.

Maybe they ain't quite as slick as they useta be. They's a little outa practice. If they warn't the Rad, cliffe boys and Al Stone wouldn't of got corralled like they did.

You've heard about it, ain't you?

Well, the Radcliff boys and Al Stone is the toughest ridin' hardest ridin' buckaroos on any man's range.

Wasn't it Al Stone stuck on that wild cayuse, Frying Pan, when everyone else was takin' dust?

And haven't these her buckaroos taken half the rodeo medals in the west? I'm telling you!

And then they ups and arrests them for a quiet little cattle rustlin'!

Alkali Ike's Fault

An' all because of that loud-mouthed Alkali Ike, a ornery "chuck-line rider." Maybe you don't savvy "chuck-line rider." Wal a chuck-liner has the same social standin' as a sheep-herder. He rides from ranch to ranch feedin' on the bounty of the natives.

Wal, Alkali Ike gets a-hold of some bootleg. An' he goes round blabbing' how he was invited in on a little brandin' party over to Stone's ranch.

The sheriff gets hold of Ike and Ike spills the beans. He says the boys got some cattle from the Miller and Lux ranch and got a little careless with the brandin' irons.

Ike said they doctored up the "double box" brand and turned it into a double box arrow.

Wal, the sheriff grabbed the Radcliffe boys, Nick and Bill.

Nick had sat in a little poker session when the aces was runnin' against him and got hard up.

Anyhow the Radcliffe boys coughed up and they say, mixed Al in it. The sheriff said the boys spilled everything —even that they done it on Al Stone's ranch.

Let Al Go

So the first jury let Al go, even with Ike's story and the Radcliffe boys.

THE HARD RIDIN' RADCLIFFE BOYS THAT ARE MIXED IN CTTLE RUSTLIN' DEAL—BILL (ABOVE) AND NICK (BELOW)

They almost gave him a medal too. They've all seen him ride and I feel sorry for the poor district attorney what's got to do his duty and prosecute.

They got some more charges again' Lim and the Radcliffe boys still have gotta go through with it. They've come clean and probably'll get off easy.

The bird I feels sorry for most is Alkali Ike. They had to put him in jail to keep him sober nuf to go on the stand. But wait 'til that ornery chuckliner goes out again to get handouts. Say, he'll be livin' on lizards' wings and angleworms the rest o' his life.

That's all they's to the story, pard, but don't let 'em tell you the west is gone.

They are Atlee Pomerene of Ohio, Frank B. Kelly of Minnesota.

LOOK OUT FOR FLU IN MARCH

State Board Of Health Urges Care Of Health To Keep Down Death Rate This Month

LOUISVILLE, March 15—Following the great war-bred epidemic of influenza in 1918-19 the use of vaccines against the disease fell off, with the result that a recurrence of influenza in 1922 brought more than a thousand unnecessary deaths to Kentucky, and the year 1923 bids fair to exceed this loss unless people awake to the danger, J. F. Blackerby, vital statistician for the State Board of Health, announced today.

"Look out for March," Mr. Backerby stated. "A year ago this month there were 373 deaths from influenza in Kentucky and indications now are that spring temperature changes and the presence of influenza in the state will bring as high, if not a higher death rate this March.

"The terrific suddenness with which influenza gripped the country following the war led to a general use of vaccine against it, with the result that 1920 and 1921 saw a decrease of th edisease. In fact people saw reason to congratulate themselves that the danger was past, and their neglect of the use of vaccines has allowed a steady gain for influenza. This contention is amply proved by the fact that ther were only 286 deaths from influenza in 1921, while in 1922 there were 1,066 deaths from it. This year will be worse still unless people come back to the use of vaccines."

"The State Board of Health provides anti-influenza vaccines free of charge and Kentuckians are urged to avail themselves of it, both for their own sakes and for the sake of the good of the state as a whole," Mr. Blackerby stated.

"CRIME" IS MISUSED TERM SAYS SOCIAL WORKER

By Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, March 15—Crime, in the opinion of Dr. Frank O'Brien as expressed in an address before the woman's club here, is a much misused term and one that should not be employed as a general designation.

Juvenile delinquency and adult crime are practically the same thing manifested at different ages, and the important thing is to get behind the unlawful act and study the criminal and the circumstances that induced him to commit the act, Dr. O'Brien believes. He emphasized the importance of studying the child in school and helping him to adjust himself to his environment, so that the tendency toward anti-social acts might be minimized.

Describing the path of the criminal as a broad and well built highway, Dr. O'Brien said the offender received his primary school while very young; a high school course in the juvenile courts; college trainig in jail and finally post graduate work in the penitentiary.

Punishment, the speaker declared, was only effective insofar as it constituted a deterrent and courts and institutions generally are not deterrent. To substantiate this contention it was pointed out that many grown offenders were possessed of a long record of early delinquency.

Dr. O'Brien advised those interested in social work to go slowly, to study conditions throughly and to educate the public. Sound, healthy newspaper publicity was recommended by the speaker as the best means of attaining public education on the subject.

DEUTSCHMANN'S HAND-MADE CABIN AT NAKIMU CAVES

DEEP DOWN IN NAKIMU WHERE THE GRUMBLES BEGIN

The average reader w[ho] follows daily the record of Egyptian excavations, is fired with a desire [to] visit those subterranean treasure rooms, a desire that few may realize.

But another recent under-ground discovery is within reach of a majority of summer tourists. It is a new cavern beyond those heretofore explored and visited in the Selkirk Range of the Canadian Pacific Rockies in British Columbia, which are known as the Nakimu Caves.

The discovery of this natural wonder was the outcome of a life of prospecting and early western romance. Charles Deutschmann, an American who roamed the Rockies from Colorado to the Far North, heard from the Indians of a spirit-haunted valley which they shunned. American-like, Deutschmann decided that this was just the sort of thing to be looked into. Whatever phenomenon existed, must have a cause. He found that shifting winds produced the human-like whispers that filled the narrow canyon; that the hole from which issued the supposed angry mutterings of Manitou, was the entrance to a series of caves of indescribable beauty.

For years he spent his summers in a picturesque cabin that he built near the cave entrance, and prowled ever deeper and deeper into the underground chambers, finding a Styxian stream and erecting bridges and ladders for the convenience of tourists who visited this object of interest in increasing numbers year by year.

The fact that a newly-found chamber about 435 feet long, from 12 to 16 feet wide and 100 feet high, is now accessible, will, no doubt, attract larger numbers of visitors than ever before.

Nakimu Caves are but seven miles by trail along Cougar Creek from Glacier, B. C., the rallying point for Alpinists as the surrounding country is covered with glacier-draped peaks that offer excellent mountain climbing, requiring various degrees of skill. A delightful contrast is afforded by descending into the earth and viewing the variegated stalactites and encrustations, after having ascended snowy trails and white peaks.
